

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTORY PREFACE

TO THE

CONTINUATION OF THE CATALOGUE

OF

THE GENERAL LIBRARY

OF

WITH AN ACCOUNT OF

THE SYSTEM OF CLASSIFICATION ON WHICH IT IS CONSTRUCTED.

IN preparing a Second Supplement to the Classed Catalogue of the Library of this Establishment, it was considered that two principal objects were to be especially regarded and effected. The first was obviously to produce an accurate and a methodised record, of the very important increase of the collection since the year 1843, when the previous Continuation was delivered to the Proprietors; and then to impart, so far as might be possible, an individual interest and a separate value to the new volume. These were the chief results proposed to be attained in the execution of this work; but other improvements appeared also to be suggested, in the form of additional information and more easy reference. All such improvements were attentively considered, and adopted in the way in which they appeared likely to prove most generally useful.

At the period when the Board of Management of The London Institution directed the printing of a new part of the Catalogue, comprising the accumulations of the Library, the additional experience of Seven Years had confirmed the value of the simplicity of the system adopted for the two previous volumes. In the Catalogue issued in 1843, the same arrangement was observed as in that finished in 1835, with such revisions only as were naturally suggested by observation and experience ; and in this volume also the same uniform principle has been generally adopted. As the former books, however, will probably be always less familiar to most of the present Proprietors of The London Institution, than that which is now issued,—a very brief account of the method of their construction may advantageously be inserted in this place ; and the rather, as it will naturally lead to some notices of the improvements which have been now introduced.

The whole series of Classes and Subdivisions of the Catalogue, is exhibited in the Synoptical Table immediately following this Preface ; and the titles of the several works will be found alphabetically arranged, according to the names of the Authors or the Subjects in every separate Class, on the pages to which that Table refers. With respect to the Transactions of Scientific Societies, which have been sometimes found equally difficult of distribution and of consultation, it is believed that a ready method of reference has been adopted. They are divided generally into British and Foreign ; the former being again separated into those established in London, or in the Provinces ; and the latter into the nations to which they respectively belong : the several Associations are then inserted alphabetically in their proper divisions. The same scheme of arrangement has been also observed, in regard of Scientific and Literary Journals ; and in every instance the peculiar bibliographical distinctions of the different series are explicitly stated.

Such then being the uniform plan adopted in arranging the titles of the books inserted in the ensuing pages, some explanation may be offered of the systematic principle on which the classification of these Catalogues is founded. In every work of this character, the design is to exhibit a methodical distribution of the collected amount of human knowledge as contained in printed-books, into a series of the most natural and copious, though distinct classes ; each of which is subdivided into such general smaller sections, as may properly comprise all the several branches of the main subject. Clearness of order, combined with simplicity of classification and facility of reference, are of course the most important qualities of such a work ; the principal design being to enable those consulting it readily to find any particular book, together with all the other authors who have written on the same subject, which may be contained in a certain library. To effect this, many different systems have been devised, for disposing the various branches of human study in the natural order in which they appear to stand in relation to each other; and perhaps the principle of such an arrangement will be most usefully illustrated, by an account of the series of Classes into which the Catalogues of this Library are divided.

As all knowledge is generally separated into the PURE SCIENCES and the MIXED SCIENCES, the Classification commences with the former, taking Theology for the first great subject. This is followed by Jurisprudence, because human laws were naturally derived out of the Divine institutes; and in it are included the kindred Subdivisions of Government and Politics, as founded upon legislation; with Commerce and its branches, as arising out of international-law. To these succeeds the Class of Moral and Intellectual Philosophy; in the Subdivisions of which are developed Ethnology, and the philosophical history and principles of Education, and of Human Society and Manners.

The MIXED SCIENCES are commenced by the descriptive list already noticed, of the Proceedings of those Societies which have been instituted for promoting scientific improvement, followed by the titles of such Journals as are devoted to the same object. The general Mathematical-Sciences then succeed, as being the foundation of the second principal division, introducing first Astronomy and subsequently the Physical-Sciences. Chemistry, the several branches of Natural-history, and the Medical-Sciences, are the next in order, on account of their intimate connection with each other; which are followed by the Fine-Arts, and by the Mechanical and Useful Arts of every species; concluded by the Encyclopædias and Dictionaries in which all the Sciences are described and illustrated.

The descriptions of the different regions of the world by Geographers, Navigators, and Travellers, as recorded in their Voyages and Travels, lead to the great Classes assigned to the History and Antiquities of all ages and nations; which are completed by another extensive division, appropriated to Biography. Philology and Literature are then introduced by the science of Bib- liography, by works on various Languages, on the arts of Writing and Printing, and on the History of Literature. The Greek and Latin Classical Authors, with the extensive general Literature of succeeding ages and countries, terminate the arrangement.

There is no doubt that such a system supplies the most complete information as to the works written on any given subject, existing in a certain library ; and that, for perusal or examination at leisure, a Catalogue arranged on this plan is greatly to be preferred. But it is perhaps not even yet generally understood that such a work is not the fittest for expeditious reference, nor for parties unacquainted with books. The visitors to a library, especially when they are occupied with some particular enquiry, have commonly too little time, or want the information proper, for consulting a synopsis, and for considering the class to which a certain author rightly belongs. Hence the present demand for "a good Finding-Catalogue," assuredly does not imply one solely classified. With every such work, therefore, an Alphabetical list of the Subjects into which it is divided ; and, still more, an Index of Authors and the Titles of their Books, should always be connected, each referring to the pages whereon they may be found. Those natural and familiar means of reference are available to all ; and it is even possible that the ordinary demand for classification in catalogues might be the most effectually satisfied, by an union of the Names of Authors, Books, and of some particular Subjects, with cross-references to the several writers, in the same alphabetical arrangement. An apparatus of this kind completes the value of a Classed Catalogue ; and an increasing conviction of the importance of it, has led to some material improvements of the Second Index to the volume now issued to the Proprietors. In addition, therefore, to a copious list of Authors and their Works, it comprises also many principal Subjects of general interest, on which valuable modern books have been published : and the titles of those volumes, including the names of the writers, are either inserted under the respective heads, or references are added to other parts of the Index where similar information is supplied.

One of the most important and interesting features of this work, will be found in the complete descriptive lists of the Publications issued by various Literary and Scientific Societies contained in the Library. The several articles of those lists are also separately distributed to the proper classes to which they respectively belong, with references to the different collections wherein they are printed; and the same explicit particulars are likewise included in the Index. Another improvement which was proposed to have been introduced into this Catalogue was the continuation of the analyses of certain large collections of historical and antiquarian tracts, only generally recorded in the former parts of this work. After some progress, however, had been made in the preparation of those lists, they were found to be too extensive to be conveniently inserted; and they also appeared likely to confound the proper distinction between a catalogue and an index. A more important and useful feature was therefore adopted, in the form of a Supplement to the preceding work, arranged on the same plan, exhibiting the Additions and Continuations received in the Library during the printing of the volume to the commencement of the year 1852; the titles of the whole being included in the same Index.

In connection with the increase of the Library as exhibited in the ensuing Catalogue, the present introductory remarks may be most appropriately closed, by a grateful record of the numerous DONATIONS which have been from time to time received in augmentation of this collection. From the year 1834 a careful Registry has been kept of all Works Presented to the Library, with the Names of the Givers, the contents of which, down to 1838, have been printed and distributed to the Proprietors; and from this Register the following concise account of those Gifts has been compiled.

The most important division of Donations, comprises such as are statedly made to the Library by several Scientific Societies, of their Proceedings, Transactions, or Journals. Of this number are THE ROYAL SOCIETY OF LONDON, THE ROYAL ASTRONOMICAL SOCIETY, THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION, THE GEOLOGICAL SOCIETY, THE ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, THE CHEMICAL SOCIETY and THE ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY. Through The Astronomical Society, also, are received various official CATALOGUES OF STARS; with the ASTRONOMICAL, MAGNETICAL, AND METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS, made at the same Observatory:

those made by the Astronomer-Royal for Scotland are forwarded from the OBSERVATORY AT EDINBURGH; and THE NAUTICAL ALMANACK is sent to the Library by Lieut. W. S. Stratford, the Superintendent.

From Literary Societies a few articles only are presented, but the PROCEEDINGS OF THE SOCIETY OF ANTIQUARIES have been given from the commencement in 1849; and the Proceedings and Papers of THE ASHMOLEAN SOCIETY OF OXFORD have been supplied to the same time from the Officers of that Association, at the instance of Dr. Daubeny and Professor Baden Powell. The Council of THE ART-UNION OF LONDON has also presented all the Engravings and Illustrated Publications of the Society; and The Athenæum Club, The Russell Institution, and The London Library, have given their respective Catalogues. With this class of Donations may be properly included the separate copies of Papers printed by such Societies, or in Scientific Journals, as are occasionally presented by the respective Authors.

A considerable Gift, which is now received annually, consists of the ACCOUNTS, ACTS, REPORTS, PAPERS, PRINTS, AND OTHER OFFICIAL-DOCUMENTS, PRINTED FOR THE MEMBERS OF THE CORPORATION OF LONDON. These pieces were first presented in the year 1847, and now form Six Volumes. Descriptive lists of the contents are inserted in the ensuing Catalogue, at pages 234—242 and 434.

The next most important class of Donations consists of Volumes occasionally presented by their respective Authors or Editors, and of small numbers of old books.

The last and most numerous class of Gifts consists of Tracts and separate Printed-sheets, which are usually of a temporary or very limited interest, and generally of very inconsiderable extent. In the course of years, however, even these unimportant pieces acquire a value not originally belonging to them, from the circumstance that they are much more commonly destroyed than preserved. Donations of this nature have in an important degree contributed to the increase of the modern part of the Tracts in this collection, which in 1834 formed 713 Volumes, and now extends to 790.

Such is the nature of the Gifts usually made to this Library; but there were some Donations received during the last year, which require a separate and a more particular record. The first of these was presented on February 15th, 1851, by the REV. JOHN LOUIS PETIT, a Proprietor of this Institution, and nephew of the late LOUIS HAYES PETIT, Esq., F.R.S., also a Proprietor, and a frequent benefactor to the Library. This Donation consists of a set of VALPY'S REGENT'S EDITION OF THE DELPHIN LATIN CLASSICS, on large thick paper, in 150 Volumes splendidly bound. A particular analysis of the series of Authors contained in this collection, will be found at pages 358, 359 of the present Catalogue.

Another Donation of great value and peculiar interest has been received from the PRESIDENT OF THE LONDON INSTITUTION, THOMAS BARING, Esq. M.P., consisting of all the most important ILLUSTRATIONS, PICTORIAL AND LITERARY, RELATING TO THE GREAT EXHIBITION OF THE INDUSTRY OF ALL NATIONS. At the close of the present Volume will be found a particular descriptive account of this most interesting collection, methodically arranged, the preparation of which has occupied the most careful and considerate attention, that it might be rendered worthy of the subject, the Donor, and the Library in which it is deposited.

A third very valuable Gift was presented in October, 1851, by WALTER HAWKINS, Esq., F.S.A., a Proprietor and Visitor of this Institution, consisting of the very beautiful and interesting work entitled A MONOGRAPH OF THE TROCHILIDÆ, OR HUMMING-BIRDS published by Mr. John Gould, F.R.S.; to which Mr. Hawkins subsequently added some other volumes.

Another important addition to the Library, was presented in December by JAMES ORCHARD HALLIWELL, Esq. F.R.S., F.S.A., consisting of a Volume of ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT DOCUMENTS, CHIEFLY RELATING TO LONDON, EXTENDING FROM THE FOURTEENTH TO THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY.

The last Donation requiring to be recorded in this place, is a contemporaneous Illuminated Manuscript copy of the French version of a very popular work of the fifteenth century, entitled The Moral Sayings of the Philosophers, translated by Guillemin Tignonville, who was Provost of Paris in 1408: which interesting volume was Presented to the Library by JOHN RENTON, Esq. a Proprietor, and one of the Managers of this Establishment.
